DESCRIPTION.

Hunterdon County was taken from Burlington by an Act of Assembly in 1713 and received its name from Governor Hunter. It has since been modified by the erection of Somerset, Morris, Warren and Mercer Counties. Its greatest length is 31 miles, its extreme breadth 23 miles containing twelve townships and a borough.

The northern part of the County is hilly and in some places even mountainous interspersed with beautiful and fertile Valleys. Imbedded in the hills is abundance of Iron Ore and Lime stone. To the south and in the Vicinity of Flemington Coppers found in quantities sufficiently large to justify mining operation.

In the time of revolution this County was not without a Visit of The Patriot Soldiers, a portion of Washington and Greens Armies passing through and encamping within its borders.

It is watered on the West by the River Delaware and on the North and West by the Musconetcong Creek and the south Branch of the Raritan River. These with numerous other Streams passing through it afford abundant Water-power for manufacturing purposes. Situated within convenient reach of two of The greatest Cities and best markets in the Union, and having cheap and easy communications with them, this County may be considered one of the finest and most opulent of the State.
